True Americanism.

The candidate for the presidency of the United States, supported by the discontented element of the country, has never yet in all his public utterances said a good word for his country. He has traveled its length and breadth, and at every stop he made he has turned his face to the wall and made it a walling place. What a contrast to the patrlot who now occupies the white house Hear his eloquent prayer for the American home, offered up at North Adams, Massachusetts, in September, 1897. In addressing the people assembled at the fair in that town he said:

"God bless and prosper the American home and the American people. Upon these rest the strength and virtue and permanence of the nation, which we pray our Heavenly Father to ever have in His sacred keeping."

How different are those sentiments to

Mr. Bryan's recent utterances which President McKinley said at Boone, Ia.

October 11, 1898: "Every section of this country loves the old flag dearly, and we have but one flag, and that the gierious stars and stripes. It is a sight inspiring to behold that in our war the troops of the north brigaded with the troops of the south that Iowa troops were brigaded with the troops of Georgia and commanded by that distinguished ex-Confederate, whose name is so familiar with the annals of the civil war, so that once more we were all together. We were all together in the fight; we must be all together in the conclusion. This is no time for divided councils. This is the solomn hour demanding the highest wisdom and the best statesmanship of every section of your country, and, thank God, there is no north, no south, no east, no west, but all Americans for-

Finally President McKinley, in a speech at Camp Wykoff, Montauk Point, L. I., said:

"To the army and navy, to the ma rines, to the regulars, to the volunteers, and to that Providence which has watched over them all, the nation to-day is full of thanksgiving and praise The names of the brave officers and men who fell in battle and those who have died from exposure and sickness will live in immortal story. Their mem-ories will be perpetuated in the hearts and history of a generous people; and those who are dependent upon them will not be peglected by the government for which they so freely sacrificed their lives.'

State Development.

The re-election of William McKinley means the continuance of prosperity not to the whole country, but more specifically to West Virginia. This state has just begun to feel the benefits of the renewed confidence of capital under Republican rule. The development of its boundless resources will cease however, in the eyent of Bryan's election.

This is not idle chatter, it is not a political invention to sway weak and prejudiced minds-it is business. In confirmation of this we refer our readers to the article in the local columns about the prospective development of timber and coal lands in Webster county.

Competent Testimony.

Mr. William Jennings Bryan, who was denounced as a political fakir by the Louisville Courier Journal, in 1896, has been going around the country since his enforced nomination, declaring against a self-evident fact-PROSPERITY The paramountcy of his arbitrary assumption of imperialism has been lost sight of in his demagogic appeals to prejudice, but it is comforting to know that some of the members of his party do not agree with him on his views of imperialism or expansion, and also distinctly differ with him as to his objections to the present prosperity. subjoined letter fully explains the feeling of the south. It was written by a Democrat, Mr. Robert J. Lowry, president of the national bank of Atlanta Georgia, to a Democratic paper, the At-

I cheerfully give you my impression at this time upon the conditions of the country, especially of Georgia. The lowest estimate I have heard of the cotton crop of Georgia is a million bales, which will probably average over 500 pounds, and this will bring at a fair valuation $50 per bale, or a total of $50,000,000 for the crop. The cotton seed, I think, at a conservative valuation, would amount to $10,000,000. The cotton seed of land cotton seed meal would be to add to this, which would make it a very large sum. The crop of wheat, onts and corn has been fairly good in most of the sections, as well as a handsome increase of live stock. The peach and melon crop has been about an average and truck farming is gradually growing and truck farming is gradually growing the section of the sections, as well as a handsome increase of live stock. #### Bryan on Trusts.

The New York Evening Post was bit. terly opposed to the election of McKin-ley, and for awhile leaned towards Bryan. It knows better now-since Mr. Bryan's speech at Madison Square Garden, where he exploited trusts as the paramount issue in the campaign, and neglected to say a word for silver. The Post takes a very common-sense view of the convention, or rather the indiscriminate war the apostle of calamity

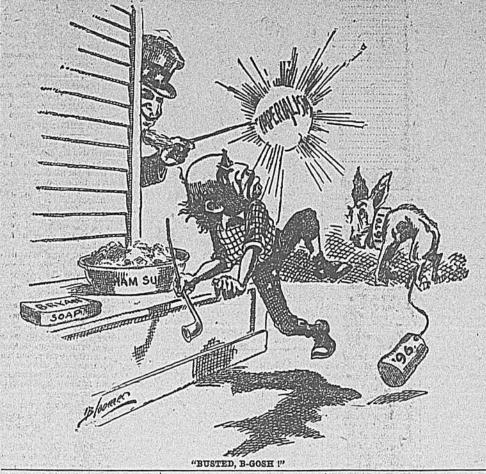

The letter published elsawhere in this issue, written by a competent judge of the first peculiary when he pictured the most of extending over the cradic of her child and hoping that he may have a fair change comment. It is a fair, unbiased look over a doubtful field frem which come in the world and brought to naught by the trusts and monopoles that are growing up in every direction. That the Republicaus may get much comfort. That the republicans may get much comfort. That the republicans than a monopole that are growing up in every direction. That the republicans that the one it was more concerned about the feet of make the contrast between himself and his autorney general had that he party had a satisfied Mr. McKin ley, and was about to vote for his residence, of a family than as a Democrat.

This was no doubt, very taking to the Maidson Square meeting—not that he had and didate, and more interested as the fattle of a family than as a Democrat.

The Moundaville demonstration, Saturday and the present the presentation of the Taylor county grand jury.

The Moundaville demonstration, Saturday and the presentation of the Presidence, or for including officer of the mount of existence, then the seed that the country is more recipional to the presidence of the presiding officer of the makes with many grains of sait.

This was, no doubt, very taking to the fishbes of the presiding officer of the presiding officer of the presiding officer of the fishbes of the presiding officer of the president of the presiding officer of the presiding officer of the president of the presidence, of for including the president of the presidence of the presidence of the presidence of the presid given to them because they were trusts. The tariff equally protects and helps industries that are not and cannot be organized as trusts.

The trusts did not have a political beginning, and they will not have a political end. They are an outgrowth of modern conditions of business, and they would have come, all the same, under any administration of the government. An outgrowth may be good or had, and we confess that this one is not at all to our likeling. Evolution may be unward or downward, but if it is evolution, and it not the product of governmental favor and interference, it should be treated like other products of evolution. The very first thing to be done it to look at it as it is, to form a true diagnosis, and then see whether the government has anything in its armory fitted to cope with it, so as to do more good than harm.

Mr. Bryan's proposed license does not seem to us either useful of practicable.

The Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore, says: "The act of Mr. Henry M. Flanger in registering in Dade county, Florida, thus becoming a citizen of the state, is made the occasion for the following hearty greeting from the Jack-sonville Times-Union:

" 'To all intents and many purposes Mr. Flagler has long been a Floridianone to labor as few others are able to do for that industrial development and material advantage which should be the foremost ambition of every citizen of the state-one to help us bear the burdens and share with us the prosperity that comes as the legitimate fruit of honest work well done. Where there has been want the blessing of his presence among us has been felt—where the wilderness was the farm smiles, and

"It is a pity that one or two other southern states are not permitted to give such a welcome to men of Mr. Flagler's stamp. It would be better for them could they do so."

We do not know what Mr. Bryan thinks of silver. We do know what he thinks of the man who is generally credited with standing between us and a knowledge of Mr. Bryan's thoughts on silver: "Groker is the greatest man in the world. And ne is at the head of the greatest organization in the world." This was his final word to New York on the issues of the day. It was spoken at the Cooper Union meeting, the last addressed by him on Tuesday night. It was not spoken in jest. The audience was not one which would have tolerated levity with sacred subjects. tolerated levity with sacred subjects. It was an assemblage at the head of the Bowery, the typical lower East Side gathering of the night. . . 2 do not know that Mr. Bryan's tribute was sincere. We do know that it was meent by him to be taken as such .- New York Press.

Twelve Democratic citizens of Kentucky returned a against Henry E. Youtsey, charged with the murder of Goebel. The partisan judge promptly affirmed the alleged judgment of the jury. This is the third conviction, but no one has yet beet pointed out as the man who fired the fatal shot.

Judson Harmon, of Cincinnati, who succeeded Olney as attorney general in Cleveland's cabinet, has come out for Bryan. Mr. Bryan is now hammering the "trusts"-the slimy octopus if you will have it that way-but what did Mr. Harmon ever do while he occupied his exalted position to curb the trusts?

Chaffee's Brother a Salvationist.

Wichita Eagle: General Adna R. Chaffee, the commander of Uncle Sam's troops in the Chinese empire, has a brother living in this city. Everybody knows him who knows the Salvation army, for Nelson Chaffee has been one of its most zealous members for several years. He is the quiet little old man with flowing whiskers who has hammered the big drum of the Salvahammered the big drum of the Salvation Army so long that the memory of the oldest inhabitant runneth not to the contrary. He always wears a red jacket and a cap with a wide red band about it. There never was much music in his drum beats, but for all that everybody has watched him with interest, for every time he gave the sheepskin a lick there were zeal and sincerity in it.

Sharks Work the Fishermen. Hawalian Star: On this side of Pearl

Harbor the sharks are said to abound in large number. The natives have the greatest difficulty in catching their fish, for the sharks follow the boats and snap the fish off the books while the fisher-men are drawing them toward their boats.
